

Intellego Wines

Swartland, South Africa - Organic Viticulture

Intellego translates to, “to understand” in Latin and is aptly named as Jurgen Gouws sets out each year to understand more the potential of this incredible region. Every vintage an evolution through experimentation on small pockets of land selected in the Swartland Appellation.

Producing Intellego Wines since 2009, Jurgen’s true passion is in the vineyard with a hands-on approach, each bottle a celebration of the hard work caring for the vines. The main aim is to create optimum soil conditions through organic practices where the vines will be nurtured for an indefinite period of time, creating conditions for each block to show their own individual character.

In vinification he aims to preserve freshness and vibrancy of fruit, the use of wholebunches and a preference for bush vines prolific throughout his range.

“From the vineyard to the bottle, we strive to find that balance that shows how we sync with nature in the most natural possible way.”
